GIRL A CONFESSED FIRE BUG

Says She Started Three Fires on the Ferry Place

The families of H. K. and E. L. Ferry were at last freed from a haunting dread of death and destruction by fire when early Tuesday morning the doors of the Lake Bluff Orphanage closed upon Pearl Newman, 18 years old, and a pyromaniac.

Successfully starting one fire that caused the loss of twenty tons of hay Sunday and unsuccessfully trying her hand at another that would have swept away the residence of the Ferrys Tuesday, the Newman girl, who is a waif, confessed the crimes Tuesday and was returned whence she came, never more perhaps to enjoy the comforts of a good home and the love of friends.

Pearl Newman was taken from the Lake Bluff Orphanage by E. L. Ferry last March. Pretty, slight, spirited, she did not seem possessed of a spirit of evil and showed no disposition to destroy until last Sunday, when the queer freak in her nature developed in all its fury and she began her career as a pyromaniac of the worst order ever known in Lake county.

It was Rev. Orian Boyco, of Waukegan, pastor of the Benton and North Chicago Methodist churches, who with Mr. Kerry discovered the first fire last Sunday. The Ferrys, both families, reside in the one house, and Rev. Boyco was visiting after Sunday school when he saw flames leaping from the hay barns and gave the alarm.

The fire gained great headway and the Zion department was called out, fighting from 5 Sunday afternoon until 3 Monday morning, when the dawn heralded the death of the flames. Had it not been for the Zion department the Ferry residence and its outbuildings would all have gone up in smoke.

As it was twenty tons of valuable hay were burned, but the barns were saved. And all this time it was undreamed that a ship of fire had developed the spirit of mischief or that her crazed little mind was even then plotting another conflagration.

Tuesday the Newman girl left the house that sheltered her and the friends who fed her and tucked her into bed each night and entering the wood shed dumped kerosene on some heavy firewood and touched a match to it.

This did not burn; so she went to a pile of shavings in the tool shed at the end of a row of buildings and applied a match to them. They sprang up into flames and again the whole family and its property were in danger.

Edward Ferry this time discovered the fire and put out.

Then a confession was forced from the girl and she was sent to the orphanage, proven unworthy.

"I think that Pearl must be out of her mind," said Mr. Ferry, Sr. "I do not know whether she liked us or not, but she had been with us since March and we were giving her a good home. I do not know what prompted the starting of the fires, but she confessed that she had started them."

The Ferrys reside on North Sheridan road within the limits of Zion City.

The Newman girl, it develops, made confession to Mrs. Ferry, Sr.

Holding out in the face of accusations made against her by others in the family and sturdily upholding her innocence in the face of overwhelming evidence, she was finally taken to the care for Lake Bluff.

On the way down she maintained a stolidity that would hardly have been deemed possible in one of her age until at last the orphanage came into sight.

"I am sorry that I will have to tell what you have done," said Mrs. Ferry.

"I am sorry that I did it," blurted out the girl, and one or two quick queries brought out the fact that she was indeed the fire bug.

Edward Ferry discovered the second fire purely by accident, while passing the tool house. Seeing the smoke and flame coming out, he tumbled to the fact that the place was in danger and at once proceeded to give battle, putting out the fire unaided.

SAMUEL WIGGINS IS KILLED

Waukegan Man Run Down by an Electric Car at North Chicago.

While attempting to cross the tracks of the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railway Company at the 12th Street station, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, Samuel Wiggins, aged 61 years, 107 Home Ave., Waukegan, was struck by a south-bound car, being cut and mangled almost beyond recognition. Dr. Fuller, of North Chicago, was at once sent for but it was found that the man had been killed instantly.

The motorman of the car which struck Wiggins, in telling his story of the affair, said that he was driving his car along at his usual rate of speed, when suddenly he saw a man dart out of the darkness and make an attempt to cross in front of his car, evidently with the intention of catching the north bound car on the east track.

He probably thought that he had plenty of time, or else he feared that he would be unable to catch his car, but at any rate, his appearance upon the track had been so sudden that it would have been impossible for the motorman to have stopped the car in time to avert the fatality.

The car struck Wiggins squarely, hurling him to the tracks where the heavy wheels passed over his body crushing it into a shapeless mass. Both legs were amputated, one of the wheels passing over his abdomen, completely disemboweling him and portions of his mangled body were scattered along the track for a hundred yards before the car could be brought to a stop.

Dr. Fuller, who was at once summoned, said that the man must have died instantly.

The remains were removed to the Larson & Conrad morgue, on the next car.

Wiggins was a well known plasterer in Waukegan and leaves a family at 107 Home Ave.

Wiggins was 61 years old, born in Ohio; is survived by a wife and son, Jesse, the latter being a steamfitter in Chicago. Funeral Wednesday at 10:30 from the house, burial in Oakwood.

SEEP TO KILL ABSINTHE.

Who would believe it? France this year holds the record for the consumption of beer. It is estimated that by the end of the year four milliards of bottles will have been drunk. The consumption of beer has increased more than 40 per cent in five years. The consumption of absinthe, however, shows a decline. A blessing on beer it is in the long run it triumphs over murderous absinthe!—Le Matin.

Honors Were Even.

We know one woman who got even. When her maid said "You're no lady" she swung back with "You're no cook."

BOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Cyrus Snyder Shoots Himself in Lower Part of Left Lung

While Wm. Becky and wife were sitting in the kitchen of their home about a mile and a half north of town late Wednesday afternoon, they heard a shot fired near the house and immediately afterward heard someone cry out, "Oh, Bill!" Mr. Becky opened the door and was horrified to see his brother-in-law fall down on the veranda of the kitchen near the door and exclaim, "I'm shot." Near him lay a short No. 22 rifle, with which the act was done, and which he had bought at Thompson Bros. not an hour before. He tried to buy a revolver, but being under age the firm refused to sell it to him.

Dr. Schaffer was sent for and soon arrived. The doctor upon examination discovered that the ball entered the boy's body below and a little to the right of his left nipple, piercing the lower part of the left lung and came out about the middle and a little to the left of his back. Dr. Schaffer informs the Times that while there is a chance for the boy's recovery, it is very slight, owing to the danger of internal hemorrhages.

In the evening the boy upon being questioned by his brother as to how it happened replied, "Oh, I did it myself all right, but I made a poor job of it. If I had aimed a little higher I would have been all right."

When asked why he did it he said: "I shot myself because I was tired of living." But later upon being questioned by his father as to why he wished to die, he said: "I decided that I would rather die than be compelled to work out all my life."

Byron Snyder is 17 years of age and is a son of Charles Snyder, and has recently been employed on different farms in this vicinity. For the past few days he has been making his home with his brother-in-law, Wm. Becky, and where he now lies hovering between life and death.

He is an industrious young man, rather quiet and modest, and as far as learned has never before intimated that he was dissatisfied with life or intended committing such a terrible act.—Grayslake Times.

JUDGE UPTON DIES

Famous and Venerable Just Passed Away Saturday After Three Weeks Illness

After an illness of about three weeks, Judge Clark W. Upton, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, died at his home on North Genesee street, Waukegan. Death was due to a carbuncle that proved too great a drain on the age enfeebled system of the jurist.

Although it was seen that the judge was sinking, his death came suddenly and Waukegan was shocked as the news was spread about the city at noon time.

The late Mr. Upton was a retired jurist of the circuit and appellate courts and has been living quietly at home for many years. He came to Waukegan in 1850. He was a law partner of the late Henry W. Blodgett and the two enjoyed the main law business of Lake and McHenry counties for years.

He was later elected state senator and served in that capacity. He was also honored by being elected to the constitutional committee and being one of the men who revised the constitution of the state of Illinois.

After serving as state senator he was elected to the bench of the circuit court and served as jurist of the seventeenth judicial circuit, embracing the counties of Lake, McHenry, Boone and Winnebago, for twenty years.

After this he was judge of the appellate court of the second district, convening at Ottawa, LaSalle county. He retired twenty years ago and has since lived at his home at the corner of Genesee street and Grand avenue, Waukegan.

The late judge would have been 84 years old in January. He is survived by a widow and several children.

Motors and Morals.

On his feet the motorist may be a kind father, a loving brother, a true friend and a decent citizen. On his car he wants to yell "Hooray!" and run things down. If it is a horse he collides with, well and good; if a man, why didn't the fool look out? Fast traveling is destructive of morals.—New Zealand Free Lance.

ZION CITY YIELDS UP ALL

Final Action Taken to Turn the City Over to Its Creditors

Facing financial ruin and the disruption of its institutions, social and religious, the leaders of Zion have renounced their individual desires and turned the industries of Zion over to the creditors.

It was announced Monday night that Dowie, Voliva and the church itself are prepared to assign all their interests in the industrial affairs of Zion to the city's creditors.

Henceforth Zion's factories will be administered by a board of directors of seven members, headed by Receiver Hately. Its constitution will include three capitalists who are not followers of Zion faith, and this, it is thought, will insure the disinterested management of its affairs in accordance with business methods.

The indebtedness of Zion amounts approximately to $8,000,000, distributed among Zionites throughout the world, owners of the land on which Zion City was built and small individual holders of Zion paper. Of this paper fully two-thirds is held by Zionites, and it is for this reason that the assurance of Judge Landis that Zion would not be disrupted had weight with the people.

Dowie is now practically penniless. His decision to assign all his interests to creditors throws him wholly on the mercy of the court. It is thought, however, that his willingness to waive his personal claim will encourage the flow of foreign capital into Zion and supply the necessary funds for the rehabilitation of the valuable industries which have been closed for many months.

The decision, momentous as it is for Zion, was greeted with enthusiasm Monday night when Judge Barnes made the announcement in Shilo Tabernacle.

They realize that one of the cardinal tenets of the church has been traversed, but they feel the surrender of ecclesiastical dominion is essential to the continuance of the community. Voliva himself, who has been one of the strongest opponents of the secession and who fathered a refunding bond scheme which came to nothing, appeared on the platform to assure them that only so could the city be saved to them.

The tone of the meeting was optimistic and while details were lacking they left the tabernacle in better spirits than they have known since the cloud of financial difficulty settled upon Zion.

At the conference of creditors Dowie's attorney, Welten, asserted that Dowie was hopeless of seeing the creditors paid in full unless concessions were made by all the heads of Zion. Speaking for the first apostle, he said that Dowie would be glad to assign his interests in Zion to the creditors if an arrangement could be made which would place all on an equal footing. Judge Barnes, speaking for the people of Zion, said the church stood ready to waive its rights.

SETTLED BY THE WAITER.

All Doubt About the Pineapple Forever Set at Rest.

William C. Whitney, Jr., who has spent a year in Indian Territory learning practical mining at Quapaw, described at a dinner party in New York a Quapaw restaurant.

"At this restaurant one evening," he said at his description's end, "two miners near me got into a botanical argument about the pineapple, one claiming that it was a fruit and the other that it was a vegetable."

"In the midst of their argument the waiter entered in his shirt-sleeves and looked about to see what was the cause of the loud talking."

"The miners decided to let the waiter settle their argument, and accordingly one of them said:

"Pete, what is a pineapple? Is it a fruit or a vegetable?"

"The waiter, flicking the ashes from his cigar, smiled at the two men with pity."

"It's neither, gents," he said. "It's an extra."

Nicola Looks Backward.

Nicola has been very much impressed with his Sunday school lessons, especially those telling of the creation of the world. He asks his mother numerous questions concerning the original state of things, and does not seem quite satisfied with the replies, as is evident from a recent prayer he made, which included a petition asking the Lord to "please tell me what there was way, way back, in the years before there was any backs to the years."—Harper's Weekly.

Screen Will Filter Air.

Many people cannot sleep with the windows open at night in damp weather. A screen which will admit pure air and yet keep out the dampness can easily be made. Take thin Angora flannel and fasten to a screen frame. Place this in the window at night when the sash is raised. In the morning the inside of the screen will be found dry, while the outside is wet, the air having filtered through.

FARMER KILLED BY A FALL

Thomas Hogan, Well Known in Bristol, Meets Unusual Death

Thomas Hogan, a farmer well known among the people of Bristol, met an unusual death at his home just over the Bristol line in this state on Sunday afternoon, when he fell from a hay loft in the barn and death resulted from the injury. The death of the well known farmer is shrouded in mystery as no one saw his fall, and the first indication that his relatives had of his injury was when the unconscious form of the man was found on the barn floor.

It is supposed that Hogan had gone to the barn to get some hay for the horses. A ladder connected the floor with the loft, and it was evident that he had gone to the loft and had thrown down a quantity of hay. It is supposed that he started to return to the ground floor of the barn by way of the ladder and that he slipped and fell striking his head against the wheel of a buggy. When his brother returned home from Russell just after five o'clock, he found him lying unconscious on the hay on the barn floor. The injured man was at once carried to the house and restoratives were administered, but he failed to regain consciousness. Dr. Young was summoned from Russell but he was unable to do anything for the man.

Neighbors seem to believe that Hogan was already dead when he was carried from the barn to the house. An examination of the remains failed to reveal the fracture of any bones, and the only wound found on the body was a small abrasion on the head. The skull was not fractured and it is supposed that the abrasion was produced by the man striking his head on the buggy wheel. The relatives of the man seem to think that it is possible that he was stricken with apoplexy and that he was practically dead when he fell from the ladder. Hogan had been subject to heart disease.

Thomas Hogan was about 50 years of age and had been born and raised on the farm where he met his death. He was unmarried. For years he had been well known among the farmers of Bristol.

The funeral was held from the Mill Creek church on Wednesday morning.

USE OF PEAT FOR FUEL.

Canadians Preparing to Use it as Substitute for Coal.

The first commercially practicable method of preparing peat for commercial purposes is described by Aubrey Fullerton in the Technical World magazine. In his article, entitled, "Hurrying Up the Coal Mines," he tells of the efforts of fuel men of the United States, and particularly of Canada, to break away from their dependence upon the limited sections that now control their coal supply. In the advent of a new coal strike in the anthracite fields, something must be found which will take the place of Pennsylvania or Nova Scotia coal, and while the mine operators are hurrying their collieries in order to lay up a supply of coal in advance of the coming winter demand, experiments are being made in Canada which promise to develop the first commercially practicable method of treating peat so as to put it on the market at a price which will make it a competitor of anthracite coal.

The rock upon which all former tests have foundered is in extracting the last 40 per cent of water from the peat after it is taken from the bog. The new process, as described by Mr. Fullerton, solves this difficulty in a way which is so simple and inexpensive as to reduce the cost of the drying part of the operation to about one dollar a ton.

The northern states of the union and most of the provinces of the dominion have extensive peat-bog lands, and the placing of peat upon the market in large quantities promises to destroy the economic anomaly of two countries dependent upon one kind of fuel produced by only limited sections of country.

SETTLED CASE RIGHT THERE.

Revenue Officer's Argument Cogent and All-Convincing.

Miss Dorothea Klumpke, the astronomer, was talking about the difficulties and intricacies that astronomical presents to the lay mind.

"For instance," she said, "there is the well-known case of the meteorite that fell on a Vermont farm in '98. It was a valuable meteorite, and the landlady at once stepped up and claimed it. 'All minerals and metals on the land belong to me,' he said. 'That's in the lease.'"

"But the tenant demurred. 'This meteorite,' he said 'wasn't on the farm, you must remember, when the lease was drawn up.'"

"The landlord perceived the justice of that claim. He thought a moment. Then he said, decisively: 'I claim her as flying game.'"

"But the tenant was ready for him. 'She's got neither wings nor feathers,' he said. 'Therefore, as ground game, she's mine.'"

"They continued their argument, and in the heat of it a revenue officer arriving with a truck proceeded to put the meteorite aboard. 'I claim her for the government,' he said, 'as an article introduced into the country without payment of duty.'"

Work.

All work is noble; work is alone noble; be that here said and asserted once more. And in like manner, too, all dignity is painful; a life of ease is not for any man nor any god. The life of all gods figures itself to us as a sublime sadness—earnestness of infinite battle against infinite labor. Our highest religion is named the "worship of sorrow." For the son of man there is no noble crown, well worn, or even ill-worn, but is a crown of thorns.—Thomas Carlyle.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Brakeman Run Over By Engine Early Friday Morning, Death Instantaneous.

Between the hours of one and two o'clock on Friday morning of last week, a brakeman on a freight train on the Willmot switch of the Wisconsin Central rail road, met with a fatal accident. While endeavoring to couple two cars he was in some unaccountable manner thrown down and the wheels of the engine passed over his body literally cutting him in two, death was instantaneous. Geo. Kuhaupt and J. C. James, Jr., were immediately summoned to the scene of the accident and Coroner Taylor was notified and on Friday afternoon an inquest was held, the coroner's jury returning a verdict as follows: That he came to his death by being run over by a freight train on the Wisconsin Central rail road and we, the jury recommend that the Wisconsin Central rail road Co. be censured for allowing trainmen to labor for a greater period than twelve continuous hours.

The name of the unfortunate man was Robert Rodidou, he was twenty-three years of age and a resident of Fon du Lac, Wis., and had been in the employ of the Wisconsin Central about five months.

He leaves a mother and one brother. On Friday evening the body was taken to Fon du Lac for burial.

ORDER LEAGUE LOSES OUT

Judge Jones Grants Petition and December 13 Day Set for Special Election

On December 13, at Mueckhe's Hotel at Fox Lake, a special election will determine whether or not a certain district in the northwest corner of the county shall be incorporated as a village. Thus the fight between the petitioners of the election and the Lake County Law and Order League was won by the petitioners.

The last chance of the objectors to the scheme will be at the last election and it is probable that the move to incorporate will be carried.

The case was a hard fought one and the result was in doubt close up to the end. If the election decides to incorporate it will mean that liquor will be sold legally in the district.

To Send Flowers by Mail.

Take a long potato and bore a hole through it lengthwise for a holder, and shave the outside down with a sharp knife until it can be easily handled. When ready to send the flowers, place around this a piece of wet sheet cotton. Over this wrap a sheet of tinfoil, carefully covering every part of the holder. The moisture cannot penetrate the paper and will be retained for a long time.—Suburban Life.

Keen Scent of Dogs.

Sometimes what seems marvels of instinct may be only proof of remarkably keen senses. A dog carried far from home in a closed wagon or in a box may go back, quickly and unerringly, by following the odor of the wheels of the vehicle in which he was taken through unfamiliar roads. Not all dogs can do such things, but some have powers of scent which are almost beyond belief.

French and German Soldiers.

It is by the gait that French and German soldiers differ. The French regiment has a more supple and easy step; the German regiment has a step more mechanical and jerky. The Frenchman assimilates more quickly than the German the elements of instruction, but once learned the German, like a machine, will always march in the same way.

Madame Midas

By Fergus Hume

CHAPTER XXVII.

Ill news travels fast, and before noon the death of Selina Sprots was known all over Melbourne. The ubiquitous reporter, of course, appeared on the scene, and the evening papers gave its own version of the affair, and a hint at foul play. There were no grounds for this statement, as Dr. Chinton told Kitty and Madame Midas to say nothing about the poison, and it was generally understood that the deceased had died from apoplexy. A rumor, however, which originated none knew how, crept about among every one that poison was the cause of death, and this, being added to by some and embellished in all its little details by others, there was soon a complete story made up about the affair.

The inquest was appointed to take place next day, and Calton had been asked by Madame Midas to be present on her behalf. Klisp, a detective officer, was also present, and, curled up like a cat in the corner, was listening to every word of the evidence.

The first witness called was Madame Midas, who deposed that the deceased, Selina Jane Sprots, was her servant. She had gone to bed in excellent health, and next morning she had found her dead. Kitty then told her story.

The inquest was adjourned till next day, and there was great excitement over the affair. If Kitty Marchurst's statement was true, the deceased must have died from the administration of poison; but, on the other hand, Dr. Chinton asserted positively that there was no trace of poison, and that the deceased had clearly died from apoplexy.

Suddenly, however, a new interest was given to the case by the assertion that a Ballarat doctor, called Gollipeck, who was a noted toxicologist, had come down to Melbourne to assist at the analysis of the stomach, and knew something which would throw light on the mysterious death.

Vandelpop saw the paragraph which gave this information, and it disturbed him very much.

"That book of Prevot's," he said to himself, as he threw down the paper; "it will put them on the right track, and then—well," observed M. Vandelpop, sententially, "they say danger sharpens a man's wits; it's lucky for me if it does."

His rooms in Clarendon street, East Melbourne, were very luxuriously and artistically furnished, in perfect accordance with the taste of their owner. M. Gaston Vandelpop, though not exactly miserable, was very ill at ease. The inquest had been adjourned until the government analyst, assisted by Dr. Gollipeck, had examined the stomach, and according to a paragraph in the evening paper, some strange statements, implicating various people, would be made next day. It was this that made Vandelpop so uneasy, for he knew that Dr. Gollipeck would trace a resemblance between the death of Selina Sprots in Melbourne and Adele Blondet in Paris, and then the question would arise how the poison used in the one case came to be used in the other.

It was about 8 o'clock at night, and Gaston was busy in his rooms packing up to go away next morning. He had disposed of his apartments to Belthorp, as that young gentleman had lately come in for some money and was dissatisfied with the paternal roof, where he was kept too strictly tied up.

Vandelpop, seated in his shirt sleeves in the midst of a chaos of articles of clothing, portmanteaux and boxes, was, with the experience of an accomplished traveler, rapidly putting these all away in the most expeditious and neatest manner. While thus engaged there came a ring at the outer door, and shortly afterward Gaston's landlady entered his room with a card.

"A gentleman wants to see you, sir," she said, holding out the card.

"I'm not at home," replied Vandelpop, coolly; "I can't see any one to-night."

"He says you'd like to see him, sir," answered the woman, standing at the door.

"The mischief he does," muttered Vandelpop, uneasily; "I wonder what that pertentious gentleman's name is?" and he glanced at the card, whereon was written "Dr. Gollipeck."

Vandelpop felt a chill running through him as he rose to his feet. The battle was about to begin, and he knew he would need all his wit and skill to get himself out safely. Dr. Gollipeck had thrown down the gauntlet, and he would have to pick it up. Well, it was best to know the worst at once, so he told the landlady he would see Gollipeck downstairs. He did not want him to come up there, as he would see all the evidences of his intention to leave the country.

"I'll see him downstairs," he said, sharply, to the landlady; "ask the gentleman to wait."

The landlady, however, was pushed roughly to one side, and Dr. Gollipeck, rusty and dingy looking as ever, entered the room.

"No need, my dear friend," he said in his grating voice, blinking at the young man through his spectacles, "we can talk here."

Vandelpop signed to the landlady to leave the room, which she did, closing the door after her, and then, pulling himself together with a great effort, he advanced smilingly on the doctor.

"Ah, my dear monsieur," he said, in his musical voice, holding out both hands, "how pleased I am to see you."

Dr. Gollipeck gurgled pleasantly in his throat at this and laughed, that is, something apparently went wrong in his inside and a rasping noise came out of his mouth.

"My room is untidy, is it not?" said Vandelpop, nodding his head carelessly at the chaos of furniture. "I'm going away for a few days."

"A few days; ha, ha!" observed Gollipeck, something again going wrong with his inside. "Your destination is—"

"Sydney," replied Gaston, promptly.

"And then?" queried the doctor.

"Depends upon circumstances."

"That's a mistake," retorted Gollipeck, leaning forward; "it depends upon me."

Vandelpop smiled.

"In that case, circumstances, as represented by you, will permit me to choose my own destinations."

"Depends entirely upon your being guided by circumstances, as represented by me," retorted the doctor grimly.

"Fshaw!" said the Frenchman, coolly, "let us have done with allegory, and come to common sense. What do you want?"

"I want Octave Braulard," said Gollipeck, rising to his feet.

Vandelpop quite expected this, and was too clever to waste time in denying his identity.

"He stands before you," he answered, curtly, "what then?"

"You acknowledge, then, that you are Octave Braulard, transported to New Caledonia for the murder of Adele Blondet?"

said the doctor, tapping the table with one hand.

"To you—yes," answered Vandelpop, crossing to the door and locking it; "to others—no."

"Why do you lock the door?" said Gollipeck, gruffly.

"I don't want my private affairs all over Melbourne," retorted Gaston, smoothly, returning to his position in front of the fireplace; "are you afraid?"

Something again went wrong with Gollipeck's inside, and he grated out a hard, ironical laugh.

"Do I look afraid?" he asked, spreading out his hands.

Vandelpop stooped down to the portmanteau lying open at his feet, and picked up a revolver, which he pointed straight at Gollipeck.

"You make an excellent target," he observed, quickly, putting his finger on the trigger.

Dr. Gollipeck sat down and arranged his handkerchief over his knees.

"Very likely," he answered coolly, "but a target you won't practice on."

"Why not?" asked Vandelpop, still keeping his finger on the trigger.

"Because the pistol shot would alarm the house," said Gollipeck, serenely, "and if I was found dead, you would be arrested for my murder. If I was only wounded I could tell a few facts about M. Octave Braulard that would have an unpleasant influence on the life of M. Gaston Vandelpop."

Vandelpop laid the pistol down on the mantelpiece with a laugh, and, sitting down in a chair opposite Gollipeck, began to talk.

"You are a brave man," he said. "I admire brave men."

"You are a clever man," retorted the doctor; "I admire clever men."

"Very good," said Vandelpop. "As we now understand one another, I await your explanation of this visit."

He heard the doctor coolly to the end, and smiled quietly.

"In the first place," he said, smoothly, "I acknowledge the truth of your story, except the latter part, and I must compliment you on the admirable way you have guessed the identity of Braulard with Vandelpop, as you have no proof to show that they are the same. But with regard to the death of Mademoiselle Sprots, she died as you have said; but I, though the maker of the poison, did not administer it."

"Who did, then?" asked Gollipeck, who was quite prepared for this denial.

"Kitty Marchurst."

Dr. Gollipeck rose and walked to and fro in the little clear space left among the disorder.

"You are not shielding yourself behind this girl?" asked the doctor, coming close to him.

"How could I?" replied Vandelpop. "I could not have gone down to St. Kilda, climbed over a wall with glass bottles on top, and committed the crime, as Kitty Marchurst says it was done. If I had done this there would be some trace—no, I assure you Mademoiselle Marchurst, and none other, is the guilty woman. She was in the room—Madame Midas asleep in bed. What was easier for her than to pour the poison into the glass, which stood ready to receive it? Mind you, I don't say she did it deliberately—impulse—her lucination—madness—what you like—but she did it."

"Why," said Gollipeck, warmly, "you'd argue a rope round this girl's neck even before she had a trial. I believe you did it yourself."

Dr. Gollipeck was disgusted at the smooth brutality of this man, moved hastily to the door and left the room.

"Whew!" ejaculated Vandelpop; "this doctor, what a dangerous fool; but I have got the better of him, and at all events, I have saved Vandelpop from suffering for the crime of Braulard."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

There was no doubt the Sprots poisoning case was the sensation of the day in Melbourne. The papers were full of it, and some even went so far as to give a plan of the house, with dotted lines thereon, to show how the crime was committed.

Rumors were started that the government analyst and Dr. Gollipeck had found poison in the stomach, and that, moreover, the real criminal would be soon discovered. Public opinion was much divided as to who the criminal was—some, having heard the story of Madame's marriage, said it was her husband; others insisted Kitty Marchurst was the culprit, and was trying to shield herself behind this wild story of the hand coming from behind the curtains; while others were in favor of suicide. At all events, on the morning when the inquest was resumed the court was crowded, and a deep silence pervaded the place when the government analyst stood up to give his evidence. Madame Midas was present, with Kitty seated beside her, the latter looking pale and ill, and Klisp, with a gratified smile on his face which seemed as though he had got a clue to the whole mystery, was seated next to Calton. Vandelpop, faultlessly dressed, and as cool and calm as possible, was also in court; and Dr. Gollipeck, as he awaited his turn to give evidence, could not help admiring the marvellous nerve and courage of the young man.

The government analyst deposed that the stomach of the deceased had been sent to him to be analyzed. He had used the usual tests, and found the presence of the alkaloid of hemlock, known under the name of conia. In his opinion the death of the deceased was caused by the administration of an extract of hemlock.

There was great excitement when this evidence was concluded, as it gave quite a new interest to the case. The question as to the cause of death was now set at rest—the deceased had been murdered. Dr. Gollipeck stood up to give his evidence.

He deposed that he was a medical practitioner, practicing at Ballarat; he had seen the report of the case in the papers, and had come down to Melbourne as he thought he could throw a certain light on the affair—for instance, where the poison was procured. About three years ago a crime had been committed in Paris, which caused a great sensation at the time. The case being a peculiar one, was reported in a medical work, by Messieurs. Prevot and Lebrun, which he had obtained from France, some two years back. The facts of the case were shortly these: One Adele Blondet died from the effects of a poison, administered to her by Octave Braulard, who was her lover; the deceased had also another lover, called Kestrik, who was supposed to be implicated in the crime, but he had escaped; the woman in this case had been poisoned by an extract of hemlock, the same poison as in the case of Selina Sprots, and it was the similarity of the symptoms that made him suspicious of the sudden death. Braulard was sent out to New Caledonia for the murder. While in Paris he had been a medical student with two other gentlemen, one of whom was Monsieur Prevot, who had reported the case, and the other was at present in court and was called M. Gaston Vandelpop. M. Vandelpop had manufactured the poison used in this case, but with regard to how it was administered to the deceased, he would leave that evidence to M. Vandelpop himself.

When Gollipeck left the witness box there was a dead silence, as every one was too much excited at his strange story to make any comment thereon. Madame Midas looked with some astonishment on Vandelpop as his name was called out, and he moved gracefully to the witness box, while Kitty's face grew paler even than it was before. She did not know what Vandelpop was going to say, but a great dread seized her, and she sat staring at him as if paralyzed.

Klisp stole a look at her, and then rubbed his hands together, while Calton sat scribbling on his note paper.

M. Gaston Vandelpop, being sworn, deposed: He was a native of France, of Flemish descent; he had known Braulard intimately; he also knew Prevot; he had been eighteen months in Australia, and for some time had been clerk to Mrs. Villiers at Ballarat; he was fond of chemistry—yes; and had made several experiments with poisons while up at Ballarat with Dr. Gollipeck, who was a great toxicologist; he had seen the hemlock in the garden of a hotelkeeper at Ballarat, called Twerby, and had made an extract therefrom; he only did it by way of experiment, and had put the bottle containing the poison in a desk, forgetting all about it; the next time he saw that bottle was in the possession of Miss Kitty Marchurst; she had threatened to poison herself; he again saw the bottle in her possession on the night of the murder; this was at the house of M. Meddlechup. A report had been circulated that he was going to marry Mrs. Villiers, and Miss Marchurst asked him if it was true; he had denied it, and Miss Marchurst had said that she would poison her; Mrs. Villiers she would poison her; the next morning he heard that Selina Sprots was dead.

Supplements to the Decalogue.

Our social organization has developed to a stage where the old righteousness is not enough. We need an annual supplement to the Decalogue.

The growth of credit institutions, the spread of fiduciary relations, the enmeshing of industry in law, the interlarding of government and business, the multiplication of boards and inspectors, beneficent as they all are, they invite to sin. What gateways they open to greed! What fresh parasites they let in on us! How idle in our new situation to intone the old litany! The reality of this close-knit life is not to be seen and touched; it must be thought. The sins it opens the door to are to be discerned by knitting the brows rather than by opening the eyes. It takes imagination to see that bogus medical diploma, lying advertisement and fake testimonial are death-dealing instruments. It takes imagination to see that savings bank wrecker, loan shark and investment swindler in taking livelihoods take lives. It takes imagination to see that the business of debauching voters, fixing juries, seducing lawmakers and corrupting public servants is like sawing through the props of a crowded grand stand.—E. A. Rose in Atlantic.

Alcohol as a Medicine.

"Alcohol has a certain position as a medicine," said Sir Frederick Treves recently, "but in the last twenty-five years its use by the medical profession has steadily diminished. It is often said that alcohol is an excellent appetizer, but the appetite does not need artificial stimulation. If the body wants feeding, it demands food."

Embarrassing.

"I see Carnegie is interested in the 'spelling reform movement. I should think it would be embarrassing for him.'"

Why?

"Well, in the new style of spelling, 'steal' and 'steal' will have to be the same."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

What has become of the old fashioned school teacher who "boarded around" with her pupils?

Some men are both hoggish and mulish; they squeal and kick at everything.

As the hog pastures began to fall, the farmer is fortunate who has a patch of sowed corn to cut up and feed to the hogs.

Smut on corn increases from spores and the way to prevent spreading of this trouble is to get the smut before the spores ripen and blow away.

Skunks, minks and disreputable bipeds are the chief enemies of the poultry raiser, and experience is likely to convince him that a well loaded shotgun is the best weapon to use in all three cases.

Mate up your fowls early, for occasionally one of the hens will want to sit during the latter part of winter, and it is a nice thing to have some eggs ready in order to hatch some chicks early in the spring.

The census report shows that there are in the United States this year 8,404,001 mules, valued at $334,680,520. This is an increase during the past three years in the number of mules of 676,978, with an increase in valuation of $36,827,193.

Cutting up corn is hard work, but when "the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock" there is a feeling that the country is safe. There is so much good feed in fodder that the stock breeder can scarcely afford to let it go to waste.

It is a most difficult thing to interest a man in the alfalfa business by showing him illustrations of plans and in writing articles about its production. The best way is to show him the plants growing. He should see the whole process—seeing is believing.

Dressed fowls and fresh eggs are constantly in demand, at fair prices, and farmers who are naturally good salesmen will find it advantageous to run retail routes, weekly. People in the cities are willing to pay good prices for something they know is fresh.

A new disease among goats has been discovered and described by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry. It is contagious and is called "takosis." Thus far it has been found only in the northern and eastern states, where the climate is quite humid. The natural range for Angoras is a dry region.

Do not let the high price of pork induce you to sacrifice the tried and trusty brood sow. She will come handy when next year's crop of pigs is wanted. On the other hand, this is a good year to realize on those dames that fool away their time and your money in raising a pair of ordinary twins.

Look at the peaches that ripen in the bright sunshine and see the perfect coloring and freedom from rot; then look at those hanging in dense shade and notice that they ripen later, are more subject to rot, and are partially covered with little black fungus spots. Great is sunshine as a fruit perfecter and fungicide.

South of latitude 38, turnips may be left in the patch to make early "greens" for the first spring weather. Where pine grows, a common usage is to cover the turnips before freezing with a thick cover of pine branches. These do not prevent freezing, but seem to insure an earlier crop of greens than can be had from those left uncovered.

A farmer had married a neighborhood school teacher, who was a town girl. She undertook to cook some rice after marriage, and filled the pot with rice. When it began to swell she had to place it in two pots. Soon the swelling proceeded until all the cooking vessels she had were full of rice. She went out and flagged her husband to come to the house before the swelling rice would push out the kitchen windows.

Never in the history of improved agriculture did there exist such a necessity for choice clover seed as at this very time. More farms are seeded to foul weeds by the introduction of really poor seed than in almost any other way. It will pay every man to buy a small magnifying glass and look at the seed he buys. He should buy the best and insist on getting it. Buy only a seed test. Buy seed like buying gold dust.

The Goose Plant.

The goose plant is a native of Guatemala, and its name is truly descriptive. Its bud has the perfect shape of a goose, with head and neck proudly arched as if floating in the water. The average length of a bud is 18 inches. As it bursts into bloom the breast opens, showing a delicate, cone-shaped orifice.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-sheets and given to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them remedies of known composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the public scrutiny.

Not only is the name of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases, wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be seen that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents, and that they are made from natural and potent agents of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines are the following: Nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is "Sagwa-weed," our knowledge of the use of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the woman's functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

TORTURED WITH ECZEMA.

Tremendous Itching Over Whole Body—Scratched Until Bled—Wonderful Cure by Cuticura.

"Last year I suffered with a tremendous itching on my back, which grew worse and worse, until it spread over the whole body, and only my face and hands were free. For four months or so I suffered torments, and I had to scratch, scratch, scratch, until I bled. At night when I went to bed things got worse, and I had at times to get up and scratch my body all over, until I was as sore as could be, and until I suffered excruciating pains. They told me that I was suffering from eczema. Then I made up my mind that I would use the Cuticura Remedies. I used them according to instructions, and very soon indeed I was greatly relieved. I continued until well, and now I am ready to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one. Mrs. Mary Metzger, Sweetwater, Okla., June 28, 1905."

O, Ye Tears!

The president of one of the well-known colleges tells this story of one of his professors of chemistry.

It seems that the professor and his wife had not agreed upon some domestic question, the professor asserting that his means would not warrant the expense involved. His wife had used all her powers of persuasion without avail and at last resorted to the final feminine expedient—a flood of tears. At this the professor picked up his hat, but paused to remark:

"You might save yourself the trouble of that, my dear; your tears have absolutely no effect upon me. Why should they, being nothing but common water with a very small percentage of phosphorus salts and a trace of chloride of sodium?"—Harper's Weekly.

"THE MARRYING SQUIRE."

Justice Geo. E. Law, of Brazil, Ind., Has Married 1,400 Couples.

Justice Geo. E. Law, of Brazil, Ind., has fairly earned the title "The Marrying Squire," by which he is known far and wide, having already married some 1,400 couples. Ten years ago he was Deputy County Treasurer. "At that time," said Justice Law, "I was suffering from an annoying kidney trouble."

My back ached, my rest was broken at night, and the passages of the kidney secretions were too frequent and contained sediment. Three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in 1897, and for the past nine years I have been free from kidney complaint and backache."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Perjures Himself to Shield Man.

In an effort to save her brother-in-law, H. A. Driggers, from jail, Mrs. Jane Hawkins, of Houston County, Ala., swore before the United States Commissioner at Troy that she owned and operated a moonshine still captured from Driggers and others. Her statement availed nothing, as the man was adjudged guilty.

The still was captured in a remote section of the State after a hard ride, and the woman insisted on taking the long journey for the trial. She did everything she could to shift the blame from the man, but failed.

The Original Porous Plaster.

It's Alcock's, first introduced to the people sixty years ago, and to-day undoubtedly has the largest sale of any external remedy—millions being sold annually throughout the whole civilized world. There have been imitations, to be sure, but never has there been one to even compare with Alcock's—the world's standard external remedy.

For a weak back, cold on the chest or any local pain, the result of taking cold or over-exertion, there's nothing we know of to compare with this famous plaster.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Since his divorce without alimony Count Boni has run away from his creditors. Why such haste?

The only thing that is worrying the stand-patters is to find another good reason for not revising the tariff.

Hetty Green admits that she don't know enough about politics to make contributions to a campaign fund.

It may be a mere coincidence but no lawyers have yet entered any protest against Mrs. Parsons' scheme for an unlimited divorce.

Now that the election returns are all in Dr. Wiley of the Agricultural Department might organize a squad to study the effects of a crow diet.

Senator Depew says the report of his resignation is a joke. It always seemed Chauncey had queer ideas about what constituted a joke.

It is announced that the Department of Justice is preparing to prosecute to Glue Trust. And there is little doubt that it will make it stick.

Mr. Bryan got defeated once and started in the newspaper business, a second time and took to the lecture platform. Wonder what spot the third will break out in.

Santos Dumont announces that he will make his next aeroplane attempt at Long Champs. Apparently he thinks that a race track is a good place to take a little flier.

The next Congress will seriously consider some scheme for taxing the estates of dead millionaires, having found out the utter futility of taxing the estates of live ones.

It is not at all surprising that Mrs. Russell Sage should deny that she is going to give away that eighty million dollars. People who have that much usually attend to it in their wills.

Mr. Hearst's sworn statement is that he spent over $250,000 in his New York campaign. But it must have been a malicious satisfaction to him to be able to add that it was his own money.

Mr. Jerome says that while life insurance officials have undoubtedly stolen a great deal of money only two of them have been guilty of forgery and can be criminally prosecuted. The life insurance officials will doubtless be obliged to Mr. Jerome for showing them where they must draw the line.

Again there is an ugly scandal broken out in the General Land Office. This time it involves Wyoming and the Union Pacific Railroad, and it relates exclusively to the gobbling of coal lands. It looks on the face of it as though it would be one more added to the list of unsavory revelations that Secretary Hitchcock will have to investigate before his term of office closes. The charge is made by a lawyer from Denver, Mr. A. J. Smith, and is to the effect that more than three years ago he came into possession of facts showing that the Union Pacific Railroad was illegally gaining control of millions of dollars worth of valuable coal lands in Wyoming. Mr. Smith says in his statement that he brought these facts to the attention of the Land Office and was assured that they would be investigated, and that he would be given notice to appear at the hearing in order to substantiate his charges. He says on the contrary, that the inspector who was charged with the first inquiry, Special Inspector Myendoff was transferred as soon as he had made his report and that the only other hearing was a "star chamber" proceeding at which only the officials of the Union Pacific and their witnesses were present and that he was never even notified that the hearing was to be held. He charges further that on the very day when he mailed to the Land Office conclusive proofs of the railroad's criminality, that patents on the land in dispute were issued to the Union Pacific. His charge, prima facie, is a very serious one. It will not occasion so much surprise in view of the fact that so many other charges of fraud have been made and proved in connection with the Land Office administration in the past few years, but it is such a charge as to call for investigation. The geological survey is now engaged in mapping all of the coal lands of the west and middle west in order that the government may follow the suggestion of President Roosevelt and withdraw the coal and oil lands still remaining from public entry. Mr. Smith's allegations have been made in such form that Secretary Hitchcock cannot fail to take notice of them. It will be only one more case added to the weary round of fraud and duplicity that he has been called to uncover during his eight years time in office. The start in this case will undoubtedly be made during Secretary Hitchcock's administration, but its conclusion in all probability will come in the term of Secretary Garfield, who it is announced will succeed Secretary Hitchcock in office. There is no question about Mr. Garfield's honesty, and the case will make a good starter for his administration during which it is hoped to clear the General Land Office from the frauds that have long been charged to it. It is only natural in years past that comparatively little attention should be paid to land frauds because the public domain was one of the largest and least considered assets of the general government. But the time has now come when the Secretary of the Interior will have to guard the public domain with never ceasing vigilance, and the prospect is that Mr. Garfield will have a busy time after he comes into office.

Nervous Indigestion

The action of digestion is controlled by nerves leading to the stomach. When they are weak, the stomach is deprived of its energy. It has no power to do its work. If you want permanent relief, you must restore this energy. Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy, and gives the organs power to perform their functions.

"For many years I was an acute sufferer from nervous indigestion; at times I was so despondent life seemed almost a burden. I tried all kinds of remedies and various physicians with little or no relief. Until one night last summer I saw Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure advertised. I resolved to make one more trial which I did in the purchase of one bottle of Nervine and one of Heart Cure. In a few days I began to feel better, which encouraged me so much that I continued the medicine until I had taken more than a dozen bottles. I am very much improved in every way in body, mind and spirits since. I make a special point to recommend the medicine, and I feel a sincere pleasure in knowing that several persons have been benefited through my recommendation."

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tacket, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tacket's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has proven permanently cured." Guaranteed for sore lungs, coughs and colds, at J. H. Swan's drug store. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Remember Good Deeds Only.

When a man does a noble act, date him from that, forget his faults, let his noble act be the standpoint from which you regard him. There is much that is good in the worst of men.—Dr. Bellows.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

Want to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

This Is Worth Remembering.

As no one is immune, every person should remember that Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine.

Took In An Alp or Two.

He was an American, and he had been "doing" Europe. When he returned to Berlinopolisville, Ga., a friend met him, full of inquiries. "Did you cross the Alps?" asked the friend. "Well," replied the traveler, "now you call my attention to the fact, I guess I did pass over some rising ground."—London Globe.

When the tip of a dog's nose is cold and moist, that dog is not sick. A feverish dry nose means sickness with a dog. And so with the human lips. Dry, cracked and colorless lips mean feverishness, and are as well ill appearing. To have beautiful pink, velvet-like lips, apply at bedtime a coating of Dr. Shoop's Green Salve. It will soften and heal any skin ailment. Get a free, trial box, at our store, and be convinced. Large nickel capped glass jars, 25 cents. All Dealers.

European Fighting Men.

A statistician has calculated that there are in Europe at this moment 9,500,000 men under arms. If they were all lined up the line would be 1,500 miles long.

As a result of experiments with cholera virus at Bilbilid prison, in the Philippines, ten prisoners out of twenty-four who were inoculated died. The experiments were conducted by Dr. R. P. Strong of the bureau of science. The death of the prisoners took place a few days after they were inoculated.

A plea of not guilty was entered by Mrs. Emma Kaufmann, wife of the wealthy brewer, Moses Kaufmann, when she was arraigned before Judge Jones in the State Circuit Court in Sioux Falls, S. D., on a charge of murdering Miss Agnes Polreis, a 10-year-old domestic who was in Mrs. Kaufmann's employ.

Frank Coulter, a glassworker, aged 25, while returning from West Virginia, was held up by four men near Steubenville, Ohio, who beat and robbed and then tied him to a stake and built a fire under him. The fire burned the ropes, allowing him to get loose. He fell into the Ohio river and then crawled back to the shore.

Postmaster General Cortelyou has awarded the contract for printing postage stamps for the next four years to the bureau of engraving and printing, rejecting the lower bid of the American Bank Note Company. While the latter company's bid would have saved $17,000 annually, Mr. Cortelyou believes this would be more than offset by the loss on the machinery of the bureau's plant.

Construction work on the first section of the extensive Bolivian railroad system planned by the New York syndicate recently formed for that purpose has already been begun and contracts for rails have been placed. The Bolivia Railways Company is the name of the enterprise. It was declared by a member of the syndicate that completion of the line will necessitate the outlay of not less than $35,000,000. The construction of about 1,000 miles has already been planned, the carrying out of which will provide four separate outlets to the seaboard through Chile, Peru, Argentina and Brazil.

For four days 1,500 immigrant passengers on the Italian steamer Florida, which arrived in New York the other day from Genoa and Naples, were kept below decks while the steamer pitched and rolled in a gale which at times assumed almost the proportions of a hurricane. The Florida came through safely, however, and none of her passengers suffered any permanent injury. Capt. Noera said that at times the steamer appeared to stand still and then would vibrate and quiver until he feared the engines would shake to pieces. At other times the seas would heel the steamer over so far to leeward that the water came on board. One night four or five great waterspouts were sighted, some of them very near the steamer.

BREVITIES.

John Weismiller, aged 40, and Peter Smith, aged 21, were struck by a train and killed while crossing the railroad tracks in a wagon at Alliance, Ohio.

A Russian ukase for the disruption of the communes and the parceling of their land among the peasants is regarded as a new scheme of the Czar to gain allies for the bureaucracy.

Miss Gertrude Hill, youngest daughter of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, was married to Michael Gavin of New York in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in St. Paul.

The grand opera season opened in New York and introduced three new stars in America, one of them being Miss Geraldine Farrar, an American girl, who made her first appearance in America as Juliette.

The goat and sheep raisers of the Sacramento mountains in New Mexico lost from 60 to 80 per cent of their herds during the recent blizzard, which is said to be the heaviest loss ever experienced by the industry in the West.

Three children, all sons of Peter E. Hanson, living near Hutchinson, Minn., were drowned while skating on Lake Marion. The lads, Jurden, aged 13; Walter, aged 11, and Victor, aged 9, were holding hands when they lost their lives.

James Prior, keeper of the Duluth lighthouse, and his assistant, Thomas H. White, narrowly escaped drowning in their trip through the concrete tunnel through the Duluth canal owing to the fact that the heavy northeast wind had raised the water to high level.

Two babies, one a boy 3 years old and the other a girl of 1 year and 7 months, perished in a blaze at 401 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago. The mother, Mrs. Eleonora Paradzinski, was away at the time, and it is believed that the older child caused the tragedy by playing with matches which he found on the floor.

EASTERN.

Three men were killed and several injured by a falling scaffolding at the new railroad bridge at Naugatuck Junction, Conn.

Federal Judge Holt at New York fined New York Central $18,000 for rebates to American Sugar Refining Company.

The safe in the jewelry store of Roy L. Leonard at Endicott, N. Y., was blown open and more than $3,000 worth of jewels taken. The robbers made good their escape.

Herman Konatz, aged 73, president of the First National Bank, a pioneer and multi-millionaire of Omaha, died at Watkins Glen, N. Y., where he went a few weeks ago for his health.

Arrangements are reported for the establishment in Newport, R. I., of a government torpedo factory, where all of this class of explosives used in the United States navy will be manufactured.

Mrs. Rebecca Schwartz was killed and a score of other persons injured when the floor of the lobby of a hall, used on Sunday nights as a Jewish theater, collapsed in Newark, N. J. Some of the injured may die.

Idle rich are moral paupers and shams, and the injustice of the economic system which allows some persons to spend wealth produced by others may have grave results, says Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes of New York.

Rev. Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey of Rochester, N. Y., who was convicted of heresy, has renounced the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church and dedicated the remainder of his life to a struggle to further acceptance of his views.

Enrico Caruso, the Italian singer, was found guilty in New York of insulting women and was sentenced to pay the maximum fine. Prisoner was attacked as he went to his cell and was under fire, and a riot in the court room was threatened.

At a session of the National Academy of Sciences in Boston, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell of Washington expressed the opinion that the problem of flight had been solved by Langley and his flying machine. The academy will reconvene in Washington next April.

In Latrobe, Pa., the home of James Menselle was blown to pieces and a boarder named Almeda Dincol was fatally injured when a keg of giant powder exploded. The boarder went to the cellar to fill a powder flask from the keg and accidentally ignited the powder.

Mrs. Mary Buzzard died in a hospital in Kittanning, Pa., from typhoid fever. Five of her children are in the same hospital in a critical condition and her husband and two other children are lying at their home also suffering with fever. Several of the children, it is said, will die.

The two men and a woman who have come to be known as the automobile burglars because of their fashionable mode of transit are credited with another haul in New York. It is reported that such a party entered the home of Richard Wishtman and took jewelry to the value of $5,000.

The supposed deliberate poisoning of the food set before the 400 guests at the wedding of Miss Anna Florence Slavin and Samuel B. Brodlin in Springfield, Mass., resulted in the death of Max Odens, the bride's uncle, and the serious illness of sixty persons. Further fatalities probably will result.

Germany is stretching out the hand of friendship, says Ambassador Speck von Sternburg, in an address before the New York Chamber of Commerce, in which he urges that trade between the countries be stimulated and a better understanding reached by means of removal of present restrictions in the tariff.

Friends of Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer convicted of the murder of William Marsh Rice in New York, have decided to desist in their efforts to bring the case before the Supreme Court of the United States, it is said. They are reported to believe that he has a good chance of getting a commutation of sentence from Gov. Higgins.

Recommendations made by the New York railroad commission designed to relieve somewhat the Brooklyn bridge crush found a startling echo when Vice President Calderwood of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company declared that the bridge was being worked to its limit and that his company lived in expectation of a great calamity there.

East-bound Colorado Midland passenger train No. 6 collided with two light engines at Ivanhoe, Colo., and two passengers were killed and several injured.

The National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in session at Denver, unanimously adopted a resolution favoring equal suffrage for women in State and national elections.

B. G. Cavagna, receiving teller of the First National bank in Cincinnati, was arrested by United States Marshal Lewis. It is alleged Cavagna is short $31,000 in his accounts.

Phlander H. Fitzgerald, an Indianapolis capitalist, was arrested on the charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with a colony company he is promoting in southern Georgia.

A lone bandit robbed fifteen passengers on a train near Glasgow, Mo., but was seen at work by a station agent who telephoned ahead and arranged the capture of the man, who was placed in jail.

Christ Klais, aged 40 years, an expert maltster at a Cincinnati brewery, fell head foremost into a huge barley hopper and was smothered to death in the flowing grain, which rapidly submerged his body.

The mutilated body of an expressman was found in an empty lot at Thirty-first street and Shields avenue, Chicago. The police attribute the murder to a gang of robbers, and three arrests have been made.

Wall street capitalists are negotiating for purchase of the Chicago and Eastern and the Illinois Tunnel companies with a view to providing electric heat, light and power for all of Chicago and to relieving congestion in downtown streets.

In Youngstown, Ohio, Miss Jennie Anderson, convicted of manslaughter in beating her 6-year-old stepdaughter to death, was refused a new trial and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. She collapsed after sentence was passed.

Capized in a skiff while hunting in the marsh miles from any habitation, Fred K. Marshall and Ottomar Zistel, his companion, of Sandusky, Ohio, reached the shores of Cedar Point after a terrific struggle in the storm. Zistel died of exhaustion as he reached the land.

After a trivial quarrel with his bride of three months over the purchase of furniture, Delos Highland, a farmer living near Casnovia, Mich., shot and killed her. He then turned the revolver upon himself, killing himself instantly. Highland was 25 years old and his wife 22.

A combination mail and express car on east-bound Pennsylvania train No. 32, too, fire at Mansfield, Ohio, and was practically destroyed with 1,000 to 1,500 letters. The mail destroyed was transferred to delivery along the Pennsylvania road between Mansfield and Wooster.

Two masked men shot and killed William Goff, the night clerk, in an attempt to hold up the St. Charles hotel in Arkansas City, Kan., and wounded S. A. Halpin, an actor, so badly that he died a few hours later. The men were sitting in the hotel office when the robbers entered.

The mysterious disappearance of a small package of jewels from under the eyes of a Wells, Fargo & Co. express-wagon driver and conductor, in broad daylight, is puzzling two Chicago detectives who are working on the case. The lost package contained jewelry valued at $1,000.

Odesa Merrill of St. Paul is swathed in bandages at her home, with her hands and face badly lacerated. While walking along the street she saw a beautiful doll in a store window. Forgetting the glass window, she made a dash for the doll, breaking the window and badly injuring herself.

Louis Guillerita, an Italian grocer, was killed in his barn in Marion, Ohio, and $100 taken from his pockets. He was shot twice with a 10-gauge shotgun. His daughter, aged 14 years, found the body shortly after her father had gone to the barn to hitch up his team. There is no clue to the murderer.

Gov. Harris of Ohio stated he would recommend in his first message to the Legislature the levying of a tax on incomes by the State of Ohio if a way can be found to enact a law that will stand the constitutional test. The Governor also favors a re-enactment of the inheritance tax law repealed by the Legislature.

Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, appeared in the District Court in Salt Lake City, pleaded guilty to a statutory charge and was fined $300. The charge under which the Mormon prophet was arrested and fined was based on the recent birth of President Smith's forty-third child, born to his fifth wife.

The towboats Raymond Horner and G. W. Thomas from Pittsburgh, Pa., ran into the piers of the Panhandle railroad bridge during a dense fog at Steubenville, Ohio, sinking ten barges containing 25,000 bushels of coal. The towboats and bridge foundation escaped with slight damage. The sunken barges of coal will be dislodged with dynamite.

The steamer Frontenac of the Graham & Morton line, which departed from Chicago the other day for St. Joseph, encountered a severe storm while in mid-lake and was blown almost 100 miles out of its course. It failed to reach St. Joseph, but limped into the harbor at Racine, Wis., after more than twelve hours' battle with the wind and waves.

Two were killed and seventeen or more persons were injured in the wreck of the Oriental Limited, the Great Northern transcontinental passenger train, by spreading rails near Lakota, N. D. The train was speeding at sixty miles an hour when the accident occurred. The four coaches and tourist cars went down a six-foot embankment and turned on their side.

Eugene Vohs, a wealthy farmer 62 years old, who lived near Louisburg, Kan., was shot to death within a short distance of his home as he was returning from Louisburg. His wife heard the shot and found the body of her husband lying in the bottom of his wagon. There was a bullet hole behind his ear. Carl Baker, 20 years old, was arrested and held on suspicion. No motive for the murder is known.

Weeping as he told his story, Frank Gahner, engineer of the first section of the passenger train involved in the recent wreck at Woodville, Ind., which cost more than sixty lives, shouldered entire responsibility for the disaster at the corner's inquest in Valparaiso. As the result of his testimony he was arrested. Conductor Mosto and brakeman Woodward of the freight train also were arrested and all three were held in $1,000 bail.

Secretary Metcalf of the Department of Commerce and Labor has directed the commissioner of corporations to make an investigation of the action of the fire insurance companies in the settlement of claims for losses resulting from the earthquake and fire in San Francisco and other places in California. George E. Butler of Ross, Cal., has been appointed special agent to conduct this investigation in California. Mr. Butler, it was stated, has had an experience of thirty-eight years in the insurance business on the Pacific coast.

A. R. Cobough, until two years ago cashier of the First National bank of Springfield, Ohio, committed suicide by springing himself to a beam in the basement of his home. Mr. Cobough became ill about two years ago and to effect a complete recovery he went to a sanatorium in Pennsylvania, where he remained until six months ago. A suit was filed against him recently involving funds belonging to an estate of which he was executor more than twenty years ago. The hearing was set for Thursday and it is known that the litigation worried him greatly.

Attacked and then choked to death, the body of Dora Gillman, 20 years of age, was found in a common alley, Groveland avenue, in New Arlington Heights, Ohio, where it evidently had been lying since Tuesday night. The body was terribly mutilated. Miss Gillman worked at the National Cash Register plant in Dayton. It is supposed she was attacked while on her way home. There is no clue to the murderer. Bloodhounds are on the scene, but the rainfall of Wednesday makes tracing of the slayer difficult. The murdered girl's widowed mother is in a critical condition as a result of the shock.

A panic resulted at the Culp school house, north of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, the other morning as the culmination of a difficulty which occurred between Ford Borden and the teacher, Miss Carpenter. The teacher corrected the boy, and he is said to have struck her in the face with a poker. Clarence Borden, an older brother, it is reported, renewed the attack on the teacher later by knocking her to the floor unconscious, and while the woman was in this condition Ford pulled out most of her hair. The other pupils were terrified and their screams brought a number of hunters to the school house. When William Chamberlain attempted to interfere Borden struck him with a rock, rendering him unconscious. Pupils followed and a panic followed. Borden was finally overpowered and locked up in jail.

SOUTHERN.

Divorce and $200,000 alimony are demanded by Mrs. Earl Jungbluth, wife of a Louisville tobaccoist and turfman, who alleges her husband conspired with servants to defame her.

While on a siding at Dwight, Ala., fast mail No. 2, north bound, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, was struck by the south-bound fast mail. Twenty-five persons were injured, all slightly.

Bishop John J. Tigert of Louisville, Ky., died at Tulsa, I. T., after an illness of ten days. The bishop's illness was caused by a chicken bone, which lodged in his throat and blood poisoning resulted.

Seven trackmen on the Norfolk and Western railroad were killed as the result of a big slip of land near Bluefield, W. Va. The men were swept down the mountain side and into the river. Twelve escaped.

Indicted, tried, convicted and hanged in due process of law in less than four hours, is possibly the world's record. Dick Garrett, a negro, who murdered Dr. M. M. Paul, was the subject and the scene was at Center, Texas.

George Wilson and Arthur Steepleton, oil workers, narrowly escaped death at New Martinsville, W. Va., in a remarkable accident. The two men had cleaned an oil well and were putting the cap, which weighed 4,000 pounds, back on the well. Their tools accidentally slipped, causing the cap to fall on their hands. Oil and gas began to escape, threatening both men with asphyxiation. With a desperate effort Steepleton released his hands, tearing three fingers off. Almost dead, he released Wilson, and both men fell unconscious from pain and from inhaling the escaping gas. The men will recover, but their hands were crushed and must be amputated.

FOREIGN.

The main part of the dock yards of the Societe Des Forges Et Chantiers at Toulon, France, was destroyed by fire. Foreign warships in course of construction were saved with difficulty. The loss will amount to several million francs.

Joseph Chamberlain is a wreck and his condition is hopeless, according to the weekly review, John Hall. The paper has this to say: "Mr. Chamberlain is a nervous, voiceless and almost sightless paralytic. His original seizure occurred four months ago."

As a reprisal against the Bulgarian government's decision not to admit Jews into Bulgaria, no matter whence they come, Roumania has adopted measures to prevent Bulgarian Jews from entering Roumania. This prohibition is extended even to Jews who are in possession of passports.

In a terrific collision between two ocean liners in the English channel thirteen lives were lost and a number of passengers and members of the crews were injured. The crash, in which the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was struck by the British royal mail steamer Orinoco, disabled the former vessel so that it had to abandon the voyage to New York.

Alarming earthquake shocks in German New Guinea, the Bismarck archipelago, followed by tidal waves, causing much loss of life among the natives, are reported by the steamer Miowera from the south sea. The effect was plain ashore, fissures being visible in the mountain. A tidal wave swept the low-lying coast, devastating the country for forty miles. At Chissel island, in Dampier straits, the tidal wave wrought great havoc, hardly a native but being left. Along the New Guinea coast Captain Prejawa saw fissures in the mountain sides 200 feet long and 100 feet deep. Captain Prejawa was unable to estimate the loss of life, but thought it considerable.

IN GENERAL.

The union printers of the country have spent nearly $6,000,000 in their fight for an eight-hour day.

Information received by mail at Montreal, Que., states that five boys were drowned at Varennes, ten miles below there, on the south shore of the river.

Twenty-three persons are dead in a storm on three of the great lakes; fifteen persons on two missing vessels may have perished also; property loss estimated at $200,000.

Premier Laurier announced in the House at Ottawa, Ont., that Charles Hyman had announced his resignation as a commissioner of public work on account of poor health.

Railroads of the entire country have decided on an era of rigid economy, involving a decrease in expenditures for 1907 of between $80,000,000 and $120,000,000, as compared with 1906.

THE SIXTIETH CONGRESS.

Republicans Will Outnumber the Democrats by 58.

The first official printed report on the membership of the House of Representatives of the Sixtieth Congress has just been issued by the clerk of the House. The Republicans are shown to have a majority of fifty-eight. The Republican membership is 222 and the Democratic membership 164. The party division in the Sixtieth Congress, chosen at the last election, will be as given in the table below, in which also appears the division of the present Congress:

LABOR WORLD.

Paducah, Ky., is organizing an anti-child labor organization.

King Edward VII. of England is a firm believer in union labor.

The total membership of the engineers' union of Great Britain is 102,202.

A union of laborers of the 'Charles-town, Mass., navy yard has been organized.

Memphis (Tenn.) stereotypers' union has just secured a contract which guarantees the eight-hour day.

An increase of pay from 10 to 30 cents a day has been granted junior employees of the Inter-Colonial railway.

The Prince law in New York, which makes it a misdemeanor to bribe a labor official, is to be tested shortly.

Foundry employees in San Francisco, Cal., have obtained an advance of 25 cents a day and a minimum of $4.

Sheet metal workers in Des Moines, Iowa, have obtained a raise in their minimum wage scale from 30 to 37½ cents an hour.

Electrical workers of Wilmington, N. C., have been granted an increase of 60 cents a day and a reduction of one hour in their working time.

In giving the conditions of employment on public work one or two States so far have required printing contractors to use the union label on public printing.

The Typographical Union of San Antonio, Texas, has organized a stock company and equipped an up-to-date printing plant to compete with the open shops of that city.

A Virginia court has decided that "no employer or contractor has any legal right to advertise for workmen during a strike and attract them to a city by misrepresentation of facts."

"The eight-hour day and $10 a week" is sure to be the slogan of 150,000 Chicago factory and store girls if plans made by officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor are carried out.

Refunds received from three co-operative wholesale societies in the United Kingdom for the first quarter of 1906 show total sales in their distributive departments amounting to over $30,000,000.

The proportion of union carpenters and joiners out of work in the United Kingdom has fallen to 5.1 per cent, taking all unions into account. This is a lower percentage than for a long time past.

From the standpoint of organized labor, Streator claims to be the most thoroughly organized city in Illinois, if not, indeed, in the United States. Every industry is organized—even the scrub women have a union.

Until lately the mining regulations of Formosa strictly limited all mining operations to Japanese subjects; no foreigners might participate. Now any person, properly registered under the Japanese law, can work the mines.

The Ohio law providing that after railway trainmen have worked fifteen consecutive hours they may not be required to give further service until they have had at least eight hours' rest is valid. Attorney General Ellis has given an opinion to this effect to the Ohio Railway Commission.

The Union Traction Company, which operates the street car line at Albany, N. Y., is going to try a plan to reduce the number of accidents. It will pay a bonus at the end of the year to every employee who has not been involved in an accident through his own fault.

The Grand Trunk has decided to establish a pension fund in which all their employees will participate. It will be conducted on the same principle as the pension fund in operation on some of the chief United States railways, and the amount of the retiring allowance will be based on salary and length of service.

NOVEMBER AILMENTS

THEIR PREVENTION AND CURE

November is the month of falling temperatures. Over all the temperate regions the hot weather has passed and the first signs of winter have appeared. As the great bulk of civilized nations is located in the Temperate Zones, the effect of changing seasons is a question of the highest importance. When the weather begins to change from warm to cold, when cool nights succeed hot nights, when clear, cold days follow hot, sultry days, the human body must adjust itself to this changed condition or perish.

The perspiration incident to warm weather has been checked. This detains within the system poisonous materials which have heretofore found escape through the perspiration.

Most of the poisonous materials retained in the system by the checked perspiration find their way out of the body, if at all, through the kidneys. This throws upon the kidneys extra labor. They become charged and overloaded with the poisonous excretory materials. This has a tendency to inflame the kidneys, producing functional diseases of the kidneys and sometimes Bright's Disease.

Peruna acts upon the skin by stimulating the excretory glands and ducts, thus preventing the detention of poisonous materials which should pass out. Peruna invigorates the kidneys and encourages them to fulfill their function in spite of the chills and discouragements of cold weather.

Peruna is a combination of well tried harmless remedies that have stood the test of time.

Many of these remedies have been used by doctors and by the people in Europe and America for a hundred years.

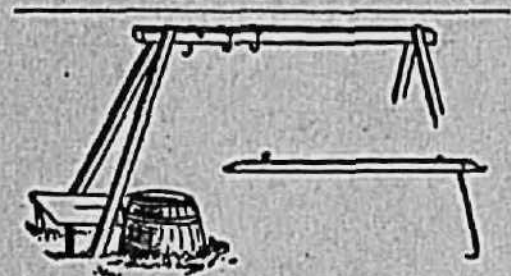

Peruna has been used by Dr. Hartman in his private practice for many years with notable results. Its efficacy has been proven by decades of use by thousands of people and has been substantiated over and over by many thousands of homes.

A Big Household.

FARMERS' CORNER

Farm Hog-Killing Outfit.
As all farmers who kill their own hogs know, the old way of butchering is very inconvenient and tiresome. The following arrangement, illustrated in the Queenslander, makes the labor comparatively easy. The top piece is 2x5 inches, and 12 feet long. The mortises for the supports to fit in are made five inches from the ends of piece, and are one-half inch deep, 2 1/2 inches wide at bottom, by 1 1/2 inches at top, thus only one bolt is needed to hold them together at top. The upright supports are 2x2 1/2, and seven feet long; cross-piece, 1 1/2x2 1/2, and at one end, this piece is bolted on upright pieces, down low enough so that bench will set over it. The lever is 3 1/2x2 at staple, and shaved down to 1 1/2 at end. Staples made of five-sixteenths inch rod iron, and long enough to clinch. Clevis where chain is fastened is made of three-eighths inch iron. The end of the lever is iron, 6x2 1/2 bent, as shown for gambrel stick to rest on, while lifting pig to the pole hooks, which are made large enough to slip back and forth easily on upper piece. Rods one-half inch, bent to hold gambrel stick. A hook not shown in cut made of one-half inch iron, attaches to lever and provides a fulcrum for the lever A for dipping hog in the barrel and raising carcass to the gambrel hooks. Bench, 10x1 1/2 inches, 20 inches high, 8 feet long. Barrel to be set in the ground one-quarter its length.

DEVICE FOR HANGING THE HOG.

No Profit in Farm Alcohol.

The Department of Agriculture, through Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, has undertaken to educate the farmers regarding the manufacture of denatured alcohol. Two bulletins on the subject have been issued.

From Dr. Wiley's discussion of the subject the conclusion is reached that the manufacture of alcohol on a very small scale is not likely to prove profitable, and because of revenue regulations it is evident that the farmer must be content with producing the raw materials. The bulletin on the subject of sources and manufacture says:

"The principal uses of industrial alcohol are illumination, heating, motive power and the manufacture of lacquers, varnishes, smokeless powder, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations, vinegar and ether. When industrial alcohol is made at a price at which it can compete with petroleum and gasoline, it doubtless will be preferred for the purposes above mentioned, because of its greater safety and more pleasant odor. Under the present conditions it is not probable that industrial alcohol can be offered upon the market at much less than 40 cents a gallon of 95 per cent strength."

Dr. Wiley expresses the belief, however, that by paying attention to unused sources of raw material and with improved methods of manufacturing and denaturing this price can be diminished.

Milk Cows.

The Hollanders evidently breed and feed for milk first of all. That they succeed is proved by the large milk yields of their cows. That large milk flow, seemingly regardless of butter-fat percentage, pays them is proved by their prosperity. The dairyman here thinks it necessary to pay small prices for dairy cows that annually yield from 3,000 to 4,000 pounds of milk. What the financial result to him is, the wretched records show only too plainly. He is the worst-paid farmer in the land. What could he do not to do it, instead of breeding, buying, feeding and milking cheap cows, he were to breed, feed and milk cows of the 11,500 to 14,500 pound class? The Frieslanders and other Hollanders, with their gigantic cows, make money on milk produced on soil that costs from $500 to $2,000 an acre or rents at from $50 to $200.

Ginseng in Missouri.

According to the Missouri experiment station bulletin, the cultivation of ginseng for the Chinese market has become an important industry in that State, notwithstanding the fact that it takes five or six years to mature a crop. While the crop is exceptionally valuable, the cultivation of ginseng has been found to possess disadvantages the same as most other cultivated crops. It appears that several fungus diseases have broken out in the ginseng plantations, some of which are extremely serious and infectious, large areas often being destroyed in a single week. However, the particular organisms causing the damage have been recognized and methods for keeping the diseases under control have now been worked out.

Cattle Lice.

Lice on cattle indicate lack of attention and poor feed. Grease of any kind will destroy lice on cattle, but grease should not be used if it can be avoided. First wash the animal with kerosene emulsion, and follow with clear water. When the skin is dry dust every portion of the body with a mixture of a peck of carbonate of lime and a bushel of clean, dry dirt. If a single animal is infested with lice, the others will soon be in the same condition unless remedies are used as preventives.

Onion Growing.

The period between killing frosts in Montana is placed at 100 to 120 days, while the time required for onions to mature from seedling is 135 to 150 days, and if onions are not thoroughly ripe their keeping quality is injured, according to a report prepared by R. W. Fisher, of the Montana Station. The experiments are recorded in detail for each year, and yields given by both methods of culture.

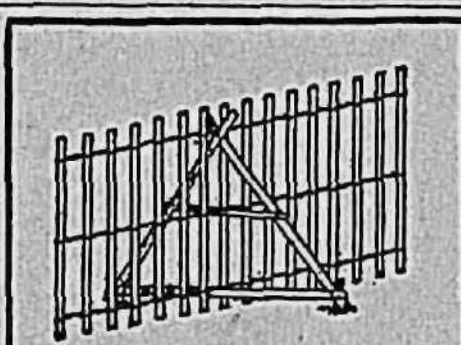

Generally speaking, the yields from transplanted onions were from 50 to 200 per cent larger than from seed sown in the field, where there was but little or no increase in cost of labor. The transplanting insures an even crop, the maturity of the crop and the keeping quality of the onions. Prize Taker gave the largest average yield of the nineteen varieties grown, and was one of the best keepers, though not usually advertised as a winter onion. The seedling bulbs of this variety, however, kept poorly because the growing season was not long enough to properly mature them. The use of well-rotted manure increased the yield of both field-sown and transplanted onions. Suggestions are included for making hotbeds.

The Onion Maggot.

The onion maggot and cabbage maggot can only be distinguished by an expert, as they are very nearly alike. The maggot is the larva of a small fly. There is no known "sure" remedy that can be applied. Sprinkling powdered sulphur around the plants is a partial remedy, but it does not always bring relief. Making a small hole near each onion and pouring into each hole half a teaspoonful of bluish sulphide of carbon, covering the holes with earth, is claimed to be a remedy, but such method is expensive and laborious. Liquid manure applied to the plants is claimed to be a remedy. The best preventive is to grow the onions on land that has not before produced a crop, but of course such can not be done until next season. This change of location of the onion patch is the only partial solution of the maggot problem.

Sagging Fence Supports.

For fence posts or supports that will not rot off or break off, for picket or wire-fence, take two boards 2x6, cross at the top so as to leave a crotch for top wire. Fasten together with 8-penny nails. Put a crosspiece in the middle for middle wires to rest on and fasten with staple and a crosspiece at bottom for bottom wire to rest on and fasten with staple. Then anchor with a small stake on each side to prevent wind from tipping over, and you have a good post for picket fence. Nail or wire post to the stake. This makes an excellent post for repairing an old picket fence.—Farm Progress.

The Egg-Eating Hen.

Some one wants to know how to keep hens from eating their eggs. Having had some experience along that line, I offer a few suggestions: A deep nest box, in which there is only room for the hen's body, so that she cannot get at the eggs when on the nest, and too deep for her to reach the eggs when standing on the edge of it, is a good thing. The best nest box I have used is 14 inches square and 18 inches deep, covered with a 6-inch door or opening at the top of one side.

Dust Bath Is Important.

Do not forget the dust bath; it is a cheap luxury, and will go far toward keeping the fowls free from lice and mites. Any ordinary box obtainable at the grocer's will answer the purpose. It must be kept dry, filled with road dust or garden soil (which must be secured in dry weather before freezing), to which should be added from time to time a liberal allowance of sulphur. Some use wood ashes in place of dust.

Studying Evaporated Cream.

The Massachusetts board of health has been conducting extended investigations as to the composition of the so-called evaporated creams offered in the local markets, and has discovered that most of these are misnomers. Numerous determinations show these products to be merely unsweetened condensed milk, which, while possessing the consistency and appearance of cream, have neither the taste nor physical characteristics.

Points in Pruning.

In pruning the trees all stems half an inch or more in diameter should be covered with some waterproof substance, like grafting wax or shellac of the consistency of cream. The bark and outer wood will thus be preserved, and the wound will in a season or so be covered with new bark. If this precaution be not taken the end of the branch may decay from exposure to wind, rain, heat and cold.

UP-TO-DATE DESIGNS FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

Practical and Useful Apron.

Anyone who has wrestled with house-keeping problems will appreciate the comfort to be derived from such an all-enveloping apron as that shown in our sketch. It covers the gown under it entirely and protects it perfectly, enabling milady to do a little dusting, or to get a meal or to clear it away, without ruining the pretty gown she may be wearing. The sleeves are full enough to draw on over the dress sleeves without crushing them and button snugly at the wrist to protect the ends of the sleeves. If, then, there is Natty Skirt for Girls.

The separate skirt will always be in demand so long as shirt waists continue as popular as at present, and, in truth, this costume is certainly one of the simplest and most serviceable yet devised. With a graceful, well-made skirt any kind of a blouse can be worn from the simplest to the most elaborate, making a costume suitable for any and all occasions, save the most formal. This is a most attractive model for such a skirt. The lines are long and the lengthwise plaits at front, back and sides give a fullness to the skirt. Either braid or straps of the same material as the skirt may be used around

Things to Think About.

There are still 20,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface that have not been explored.

The diving bell was used in Phoenix B. C. 320, but not used in Europe until about 1500.

Passo, in Peru is the highest town in the world, standing as it does 14,275 feet above sea level.

New York City has to bear about one-third of the entire fire loss of the United States and Canada.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

The authority of a clerk of a district court to take a bail bond was denied in Territory ex rel. Thacker vs. Woodring (Okla.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 848.

Power to confer the right of eminent domain to secure a right of way for a private railway is denied in Cozad vs. Kanawha Hardwood Co. (N. C.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 909.

The construction of mining roads and tramways is held, in Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. vs. Strickley (Utah), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 970, to be a public use, for which the power of eminent domain may be exercised.

Injuries caused by gross negligence are held, in Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. vs. Hamler (Ill.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 674, to be included in a release, by a sleeping car porter, of the railroad company from liability for negligent injury.

The rule making certainty as to payment a condition of negotiability was applied in Joseph vs. Catron (N. M.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 1120, by denying the negotiability of a note payable upon the confirmation by congress of a certain land grant.

A supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review is held, in Hardwick vs. American Can company (Tenn.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 1020, to be a proper proceeding to bring before the court new matter discovered by defendant while the decree is in process of execution.

An action for the death of a minor child is held, in Swift & Co. vs. Johnson (C. C. A. 8th Cir.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 1101, to be for the sole benefit of the father, although he has deserted his family, to whose support the deceased was, at the time of his death, contributing.

One whose indorsement was secured upon a note by the trick of inducing him to sign his name to a paper placed upon the note in such a way that the ink penetrated through to the note is held, in Yakima Valley bank vs. McAllister (Wash.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 1075, not to be liable.

CLEAR MOUTHS OF VOLGA.

American Engineer Also Raises the Grade in City of Galveston.

In all ages political leaders have had it in their power to elevate or degrade provinces and nations, but to a man who made no pretenses of either political or military leadership belongs the credit of improving the condition of whole provinces in a country whose language he did not know. The task was accomplished by an American engineer who, in 1897, was sent for by the Russian minister of ways and communications and commissioned to study the question of deepening the Volga river.

Upon completing his work he observed that on account of the alluvial deposits at the mouth of the river emptying into the Black sea the channel was so choked that for generations it had been necessary for the vessels carrying grain toward the sea to transfer it at the mouth, where lighters took it to the ships on the Black sea. As a result the profits of the producer were eaten up by the cost of the double transfer at the mouths of the rivers. The work of Mr. Bates, the engineer, in deepening the mouths of the rivers obliterated the necessity for this economic waste and made the difference between poverty and prosperity for millions of Russians.

Another of Mr. Bates' great engineering feats described by French Strohler in "The World's Works," is that of raising the grade of the city of Galveston. The location of that city on a low island in the gulf placed it at the mercy of the fierce storms which rage along the coast and after the disaster of 1900 it was determined to raise the surface of the city above the danger level. The average depth of the fill called for in the contract is seven and one-half feet, although in some places the new elevation is seventeen and one-half feet greater than the old. This involves the dredging of more than 11,000,000 yards of sand and distributing it over an area of about two square miles.

This amount of material is of sufficient volume to build five pyramids each of the size of Cheops, the largest in Egypt, and when it is completed 2,150 dwellings will have been raised to the new level and set on new foundations and all the sewers, gas pipes, water pipes and electric conduits will be elevated accordingly. The method employed is to pump sand from the outer side of the sea wall and discharge the mixture of sand and water through pipes to the parts of the city to be raised, where the water drains off and leaves the sand.

BIG LINERS CRASH.

SEA CLAIMS MANY VICTIMS OF COLLISION.

Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Is Rammed by the Orinoco After Leaving the Harbor of Cherbourg—Panic on Both Vessels.

In a terrific collision off Cherbourg, France, between two ocean liners late Wednesday night thirteen lives were lost and a number of passengers and members of the crews were injured. The crash, in which the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was struck by the British royal mail steamer Orinoco, disabled the former vessel so that it had to abandon the voyage to New York.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and the Orinoco both were outward bound from Southampton via Cherbourg, the one for New York and the other for West Indian ports. The shock was terrific, causing a panic among the passengers on board the vessels, especially among the emigrants. On the Orinoco three men and a woman were killed and six women and a man were injured, and five persons were thrown overboard and drowned. Of the two steamers the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse is said to have sustained the greater damage, and has a hole in one side. Four steerage passengers on the Kaiser were killed and twelve injured. The damage to the Orinoco was confined to her bows.

Going Seventeen Knots an Hour.

When the collision occurred the Kaiser was steaming at the rate of seventeen knots an hour. The Orinoco was bound for Cherbourg. The commander of the Orinoco asserts that he signaled that he was going to starboard of the North German Lloyd vessel, but that the latter held her course across the Orinoco's bows and went to port of the Orinoco only when it was too late. The engines of the Orinoco, it is said, were reversed as soon as it appeared that an accident would occur, but she crashed into the starboard bow of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, making a breach twelve feet wide. The stem of the Orinoco above the water-line was carried away as the vessels cleared after the collision. The shock threw all the passengers on the Kaiser from their feet. The grinding of the Orinoco's bow into the steerage of the German vessel instantly killed four persons, among them a girl 11 years old.

Panic on the Orinoco.

The captain of the Orinoco ordered boats to be cleared away, but the panic on board was general. Some of the crew jumped into and launched two of her boats and several frenzied women attempted to get into them as they were being lowered over the side. One boat was swamped when it struck the water.

A number of small boats from Cherbourg put out to the scene of the collision and rescued some of the sailors and passengers who were struggling in the waves, but five of the crew of the Orinoco are believed to have been drowned.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse had about 200 first-class passengers, 200 second-class and about 700 steerage. The Kaiser is a twin-screw schooner-rigged vessel. She is of approximately 15,000 tons, 620 feet long, 60 feet beam and 30 feet depth of hold. She was built at Stettin, Germany, in 1897, and is commanded by Captain Engelbart.

The Orinoco, A. C. Farmer master, is a screw steamship of 4,581 tons. She is 409 feet 7 inches long, 45 feet beam and 33 feet 4 inches depth of hold. She was built at Greenock, Scotland, in 1886.

Prizes to Reduce Death Rate.

Mayor Broadbent of Huddersfield, England, who took office two years ago, offered to give parents living in a certain district of the city $5 for every child born during his term of office and which lived to the age of one year. The result of the experiment has been announced on the second anniversary of its inauguration. In the experimental area the death rate of infants had averaged 122 per 1,000 for the preceding ten years. During the past two years the conditions were unfortunately owing to an epidemic of whooping cough and measles. Notwithstanding, 105 babies have received the prize offered by the Mayor. The average mortality was 44 per 1,000, or a decrease of over half.

Seven Causes for Divorce.

The national divorce congress, which began its sessions at Philadelphia the other day with the object of initiating a uniform national divorce law, had a membership of 120 delegates from nearly every State. Seven causes of divorce to be incorporated in the law were agreed upon—adultery, bigamy, conviction and sentence for crime followed by a conviction of imprisonment for at least two years, extreme cruelty such as to endanger life or health, habitual drunkenness for two years and willful desertion for the same length of time. On the question of age there was much discussion. Several men advocated the ages of 21 and 18, respectively, for men and women, but this was opposed by two women delegates, who thought the age of matrimonial consent should be fixed at 18 and 10.

From Far and Near.

Harry Williams of St. Paul, Minn., the song writer, and Miss Caroline Deming of Detroit were married in New York. Judge Thayer Melvin, Circuit Court judge in West Virginia almost continuously from 1893, was stricken with paralysis.

The effects of the San Francisco earthquake on the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company showed themselves at the annual meeting, when it was decided by the directors that no dividends for the last year would be paid.

Chicago.

Unseasonable weather interrupted retail dealings and there was a smaller demand upon the jobbers for staple goods, but the buying of holiday specialties maintaining an exceptional aggregate. No diminution appears in the volume of production in iron and steel and other prominent industries, and a steady flow of new demands added further to the pressure upon manufacturing capacity and maintained firm markets for raw materials.

More congestion is noted in railroad transportation and various business interests suffer severe drawbacks from lack of cars. Advances from interior points continue cheerful as to the excellent outlook for winter trade, stocks of merchandise undergoing timely reduction, and mercantile collections at western points make a good showing.

Distribution of commodities is well beyond all previous magnitude, much of the gain being due to unprecedented quantities of heavy materials for construction and power. Earnings of the Chicago railroads increase largely in gross over those of a year ago, and with the liberal additions now being made to equipment some relief soon may be apparent where congestion is acute.

Failures reported in the Chicago district numbered 26, against 27 last week and 21 a year ago.—Dun's Review of Trade.

New York.

Though checked in some sections by irregular weather conditions trade is active as a whole. Holiday demand is opening up earlier than usual, industry in nearly all lines is still pushed to the limit of production, and little relief from the prevailing car congestion is yet apparent, despite the fact that the movement of certain crops to market is smaller than usual at this season. Despite the approach of close of the season of outdoor activities, there is still general complaint of the scarcity of labor, and railways, mills, and factories are conceding advances in wages to hold their help, without, however, entirely satisfying demands presented. A season of plentiful production of immense industrial activity, and of great financial operations is apparently closing, with a record holiday trade beginning earlier than usual.

Jobbers have been working to fill orders for fall and winter goods, while wholesalers have been busy on spring account. Taken as a whole, trade in first and second hands is at present more active than usual at this season, while retail trade is heavy, demand covering a wide range, and the quality of purchases exceptionally high.—Bradstreet's Commercial Report.

CUT OUT FOR A DIPLOMAT.

Quick Wit Extricated Young Man from Difficult Situation.

Most people take things lightly at the seashore, so that probably accounted for the fact that a certain young man found himself engaged to two charming girls at one and the same time while enjoying his vacation during the past summer.

One day he was seated, half dozing, on the deserted piazza of the hotel where all three of the interested parties were stopping when suddenly two little hands were clasped tightly over his eyes, and a sweet voice whispered, "Guess who?"

"Was it Clara or Nan? Should he say one of the names and chance it? These thoughts were flashing through his brain, when an inspiration struck him.

"It's the dearest, sweetest, prettiest little girl in all the world," he said. "Oh, you dear old Jack boy!" she whispered, satisfied and delighted, and the hands dropped from his eyes to his shoulders.

Anecdote of Pericles.

Democracy was a new thing to the Athenians, and they became so dreadfully swayed over it that Pericles was at his wit's end what to do with them.

"If it were not for the plain people, politics would be easy," he was often heard to complain.

Finally, in his desperation, he consulted the Delphic oracle.

"Give the plain people plenty of rope," was the veiled answer of the pythonesse, "and leave the rest to the gods."

Pericles was sorely puzzled. But on his way back to Athens, he purchased a cigar of the boy on the train, and it was a Connecticut cigar.

"I wonder if this can be the rope the oracle meant?" he suddenly exclaimed, after he had smoked awhile.

It could be, and was. To make a long story short, a great political secret had come to light, and from that time forth Pericles had pretty much his own way in everything.—Puck.

Question and Answer.

When Nathan M. Morse was trying the Tuckerman will case before Judge McKim, at Boston, Dr. Jelly, the well-known expert on insanity, was one of the witnesses. One of the hypothetical questions asked of the witness by Mr. Morse contained no less than 20,000 words. The lawyer started this pithy question at the opening of court and closed only a few minutes prior to the noon adjournment. The point that Mr. Morse was endeavoring to bring out related to the mental condition of the testator when he made his will.

This is said to have been the longest single interrogation ever made in a court of law, and the answer comprised just three words, "I do not."

"His wife last week fell ill, and the doctor was sent for. The doctor, after he had seen the lady, said to the huntsman:

"Your wife is in rather a bad way? He hesitated. Then he went on solemnly: 'Do you want to know the worst?'"

"Certainly," said the husband, "certainly. Tell me the worst—is it to be Palm Beach or the Riviera?"—Minneapolis Journal.

Electric Cradle.

"An electric cradle," said the salesman, "is the latest thing. The ordinary light current runs it, as in the case of the electric fan."

He attached to the cradle the flexible cord through which the electricity flowed, and turning the button stepped back. The cradle rocked with a smooth, soft motion. There was a tiny switch to make it go fast or slow. "Great, isn't it?" said the salesman. "My only wonder is that, with our electric sewing machines, carpet sweepers, chafing dishes, hot water bags and what not we didn't hit on the electric cradle long before this."

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elmore, N. I had given up hope of living when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One 50 cent bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the drops had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease.

BUILD PEN AROUND SNAKES.

Idaho Farmers Are Forced to Fence in a Den of Rattlesnakes.

Council, Idaho.—The young sons of Jeff Donat and Frank Richardson had an exciting experience with a den of rattlesnakes on the latter's ranch on Hornet creek. They killed 21 reptiles in a few minutes, and apparently did not make much of an impression on the number that inhabit the den.

For a number of years there has been known to exist a number of dens of these snakes along the rocky bluffs that border Hornet Creek valley, and a few years ago an effort was made to exterminate the largest colony, at which time more than 300 were killed in one day without exhausting the supply. Failing in the effort to kill them, the ranchers living adjacent to the den fenced the snakes in with a tight board fence.

While these reptiles are numerous within a few miles of Council, there are none whatever in the valley, and a strange peculiarity of the snakes seems to be that they never leave the rocky ledges along the rim of Hornet Creek valley.

In vacation seasons he carries three routes, and during school months he has one route. He is now in the second year at the high school and has not missed an edition of his magazine for five years. He intends to enlarge his paper as he grows older and later to enter the professional magazine field.

Find $50,000 Fortune in Barn.

Winona, Minn.—Believing that Lemuel Hill, an aged bachelor who died in this city seven years ago, went to his grave with a secret regarding a fortune which relatives supposed he had saved during his long life of a recluse, search was begun on his farm at Pleasant Hill, Minn. The searchers were rewarded after an all-day hunt by finding under the floor of the barn personal property belonging to the dead man valued at about $50,000.

ENTERPRISE OF AN UNCLE.

He Accomplished an Elopement for His Shy Nephew.

Geneva.—An amusing abduction occurred recently at Huningue, on the Swiss-German frontier, near Bale, where a wealthy retired merchant named Felix was arrested on a charge of carrying off a girl, but was liberated as soon as the facts of the case became known to the police.

It appears that the old man's nephew, a shy young man of 23 years, fell in love with a girl on a visit to Neuchatel, and his sentiments were reciprocated by the girl. The girl's parents, however, refused to allow their daughter to marry on the ground that she was too young.

When the lovesick young man told his troubles to his uncle, the old man upbraided him for his lack of enterprise and promised to bring the girl to Huningue within 48 hours. Hiring a powerful motor car, and taking a couple of men with him, Felix left for Neuchatel, abducted the girl from near her home, and returned within the allotted time. The marriage took place next day.

The girl's parents have forgiven the daughter, who was not in the plot, and everything has ended well.

Bells Stop Church Services.

Bradock, Pa.—With $5,000 worth of consecrated bells pealing and jangling right across the street, Rev. John Kershaw, pastor of the Congregationalist church, often is unable to make his rock hear his sermon and is forced to suspend services. The bells belong to the Sacred Heart Polish Catholic church, the pride of the Poles in the Monongahela valley, for they are the most costly and loudest. In accordance with the Polish customs, the bells are rung before and after each mass. The Congregationalists appealed to Burgess J. E. Little for relief, and, if he is unable to help, the Polish church will be taken into court as a nuisance.

Earth Becoming a Desert.

That the earth is becoming a desert and that it is only a matter of time when it will be a desolate waste, was the statement made by Prof. Lowell in a lecture before the Lowell Institute at the Massachusetts Institute of technology.

The water contained by the earth is passing gradually off into inter-stellar space, and the great deserts such as the Sahara and those in Arizona are increasing in size much more rapidly than most people think.

According to Prof. Lowell, what were once well populated valleys in the region of the Sahara, is now a dry, sandy waste. In Mars similar changes have been taking place, and the planet is now about three-eighths desert.—Boston Globe.

One clerk who had earned the reputation of being the best saleswoman in the shoe department was asked the secret of her success.

"I sell all the shoes that have been returned," she explained. "The other girls are afraid to show them, but I find them the best sellers. Our house is liberal in its treatment of dissatisfied customers, and we get back a good many pairs of shoes that have been worn around the house until they are partly broken in. These shoes are much more comfortable than a brand-new pair. The soles may be a trifle soiled, but the customer who puts ease above every other consideration does not mind that, consequently I sell shoes while the other girls only fit them on."—N. Y. Globe.

The Blues

Do you have a fit of "the blues" every month? Suffer from headache, back-ache, low waist-pains, creeping sensations, nervousness, irritability, irregularity, or any disorder of your natural functions? Such symptoms show that you suffer from one of the diseases peculiar to women. Don't procrastinate. Take

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMAN'S RELIEF

Mrs. Sarah G. Butts, of White Plains, Va., writes: "Cardui is certainly a panacea for suffering women. I was sunk in despair. Death is no worse than the pains I suffered periodically. Nothing relieved me, until I took Cardui. Now the pains have gone, and I am stronger than in 15 years." Try it for your troubles.

Knows "Divine Right" doctrine. At an exciting Republican convention at Worcester, when Gen. Butler nearly captured the nomination for governor, Rev. Freeman Clark took the platform, and in a great speech against Butler unannounced a new and novel political doctrine, since known as the "divine" right to vote.

A year or two later, on a hot summer day, Mr. Clarke and his family were driving through Roxbury, when the horse balked at a sewer excavation in one of the streets. No amount of urging, including a vigorous application of the whip, could make the animal move. An ardent admirer of Gen. Butler who was passing along, and recognizing Mr. Clarke, dryly remarked: "Parson, your horse must understand the 'divine right' doctrine."—Boston Herald.

Hasty Reassurance. "I was so glad to meet your mother," said Mr. Newcomer. "By the way, I didn't think she was—er—so very stout—" "Oh," interrupted Miss Yerner. "I'm sure I'll never grow to be like her. I take after you, you know."

Preventas, as the name implies, prevent all colds and grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventas are loathsome candy tablets. Preventas dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventas are thoroughly safe for children, and as effective for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by all dealers.

Adjustable Definitions.

In the political lexicon "unmasked" is the term applied to a member of the opposing party who has been slandered, and the term "slandered" is applied to one of the faithful who has been unmasked.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Made Happy for Life.

Great happiness came to the home of S. O. Blair, school superintendent, at St. Albans, Vt., when his little daughter was restored from the dreadful complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance, which yielded to no treatment but grew steadily worse until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters, and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weakness, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan, drug store. Price 50c.
